Dear Mr. Rojas,

Thank you for your explanatory letter of September 30th.

We accept your interpretation of the contract with respect to 'exclusive' disposition rights of translations other than into English.

However, since you are obliged to give us 50% under any contract you arrange, we felt that with our contacts we might have obtained considerably higher payments or royalties in connection with translation rights to other publishers.

We are in the process of polishing up our own translation of your book, and expect to go into production within the next two weeks.

Kindest regards, and we trust you will keep us advised of your progress with respect to the sale of other rights, in which we have an interest of 50%.

Sincerely,

Mr. Manuel Rojas
