Dear Mr. Rojas:

Confirming our telephone conversation of last evening, I am pleased to offer you a Visiting Lectureship in Spanish American literature for the academic year 1963-64 at a salary of $11,000.

I am very happy that I find myself able to do this since all of my colleagues in the department are enthusiastic about the prospect of having you with us. I would appreciate it if you would send me a letter of acceptance at your earliest convenience so that a formal notice of appointment may be sent to you by President Flemming. He has, of course, already approved the appointment.

The actual work in the classroom we can decide upon within the next few days, and I shall write again to you about this within a few days. If you have any questions or proposals, please do not hesitate to inform me of them.

Sincerely yours,

Chandler B. Beall
