Dear Senor Rojas:

Professor Paul Rogers of the University of Missouri has passed on to me your letter of November 6, 1967, concerning permission to reprint your story "Una carabina y una cotorra" in an anthology of short stories that we shall publish.

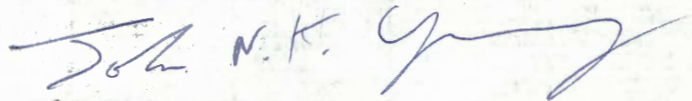

We are glad to offer you, on behalf of Professor Rogers, $250.00 for the rights to this story in the United States and possessions and the Philippines. You will notice that the story is shorter than the average of those requested by Professor Palley, and that it is only one out of a collection of 23 stories by many different authors, thus forming a much less significant part of the whole. Professor Rogers and Macmillan would very much like to include "Una carabina y una cotorra", and I very much hope that you will see your way to agreeing to our proposed fee, which is certainly in line with our previous arrangements with you.

Sucesión Manuel Rojas

I would like to point out that in accordance with our contract with Professor Rogers, all permissions fees are to be deducted from his royalty earnings. From what I know of Professor Rogers, his selection of stories is likely to be based on literary excellence rather than any prospect of monetary gain. I hope, therefore, that you can give him every possible consideration.

If you agree to our offer of $250.00, please initial one copy of this letter and return it to me.

Yours sincerely,
