

A black and white photograph capturing the interior of a massive, arched wooden structure under construction. The ceiling is composed of numerous curved wooden ribs that create a series of overlapping arches, with light filtering through the gaps. In the center, a large, multi-sided geometric frame is superimposed over the structure. Below this, the text "PATRIMONIO UC" is printed in a serif font. The lower portion of the image shows a complex network of steel scaffolding and wooden supports. Several workers are visible on the ground floor, some standing near the scaffolding and others further back. The overall scene conveys a sense of large-scale architectural work and structural complexity.
