Dear Sir:

It is a pleasure to write that you have been selected for inclusion in TWENTIETH CENTURY AUTHORS, a biographical world-dictionary of contemporary writers. This work will represent a combination, expansion, and complete revision of LIVING AUTHORS (1931) and AUTHORS TODAY AND YESTERDAY (1933), two of the most valued and popular reference volumes in American libraries and schools.

In order to assure an authentic and interesting record we trust that you will cooperate with us by sending the following items: (1) an informal autobiographical sketch of about 500 words; (2) a recent photograph of yourself, suitable for reproduction. The information that we desire is chiefly on the personal side, but we shall appreciate also a first-hand list of your works; also references to trustworthy articles about yourself in books and periodicals to assist our research staff.

Your inclusion in TWENTIETH CENTURY AUTHORS will, of course, entail no financial obligation whatever on your part. We shall be glad to notify you when the book is published, but you will not be solicited or annoyed in any way or manner. Your own publisher is our reference.

We aim, with your help, to make this encyclopedic work a human and literary document of permanent value to students of the literature of our time. No modern writer of note whose work appears in English will be absent from our pages.

A few of the many authors of all nationalities who have already cooperated with us: Johan Bojer, Van Wyck Brooks, A. E. Coppard, John Dos Passos, Theodore Dreiser, Georges Duhamel, James T. Farrell, Lion Feuchtwanger, H. Granville-Barker, Joseph Hergesheimer, Emil Ludwig, Andre Maurois, H. L. Mencken, Sean O'Casey, Ezra Pound, J. B. Priestley, Henry Handel Richardson, Jules Romains, Bertrand Russell, Felix Salten, George Santayana, Booth Tarkington, Francis Brett Young, Stefan Zweig. It will be a pleasure to add your name to this list.

Your early attention to our request will be much appreciated. For your convenience in replying an addressed envelope is enclosed.

Yours sincerely,

Stanley J. Kunitz &
Howard Haycraft, Editors
